The Health & Quality of Life of "Seasoned" Women

Nita Karnik Lee, MD, MPH is a board-certified Gynecologic Oncologist who provides comprehensive and compassionate surgical, chemotherapy, and survivorship care to women diagnosed with all gynecologic cancers. She is the physician champion of the University of Chicago Woman to Woman Program, a peer-to-peer mentoring program for gynecologic cancer survivors. Dr. Lee's interests include patient centered research and advocacy in survivorship, supportive care and cancer disparities. Dr. Lee serves as the University of Chicago Comprehensive Cancer Center's Faculty Director of the Office of Community Outreach and Cancer Health Equity. She currently serves as the Chair of the Patient Education Committee for the Foundation for Women's Cancer and a member of the American Society for Clinical Oncology Survivorship Committee.
