

Sadia Shah

I am a second-year Ph.D. student studying Social and Behavioral Health at the VCU School of Medicine's Department of Health Behavior and Policy. My study focuses on the disparities and inequities in cancer incidence and mortality among women, minorities, and refugees. I am interested in investigating factors contributing to cancer screening and prevention behaviors in these populations.