

Cecelia Boardman, MD

As a gynecologic oncologist, Dr. Cecelia Boardman is a little different than a general ob-gyn. She takes care of women with ovarian and uterine cancers, does surgeries and chemotherapy, and is also board-certified in hospice and palliative medicine.

Dr. Boardman is a leader in her field as the second female fellow at the Mayo Clinic and the first to do a robotic radical hysterectomy in Richmond. Since she was the first gynecologic oncologist in the area on the robotics platform, Boardman has seen a lot, and says the biggest change throughout the past decade is patient outcomes.
